

TEC 40

Your Entry Level Tech Diving Course

Lets begin your journey into Technical Diving, learn some theory and put into practice gas switching, limited decompression diving and preparation for foreseeable emergencies which may occur when you journey into technical dives.

Who can do the programme?

To start the course you will need to be:

- Advanced Open Water Diver or equivalent
- Enriched Air Diver and Deep Diver
- Be at least 18 years of age
- 30 logged dives (10 dives on EANx and 7 deeper than 30m)

What's involved?

- Knowledge development
- 3 practical application session
- 1 confined (or limited) open water dive
- 2 open water simulated decompression dives
- 1 open water decompression dive

By the end of this course you will be qualified to:

Use decompression software and make decompression dives no deeper than 40metres
Use a single cylinder of decompression gas with up to 50% oxygen.

This is a great way to experience your first taste of Tec Diving. If you have enjoyed this session and completed the skills you are now ready to move onto the next step – Tec 40
